ROME, August 9. O. S.

AFTER the Election of Cardinal Prosper Lambertini for Pope, he was carried behind the Altar, where the Cardinal's Habit was changed for the Pontifical Vestment; after which he was carried in his Chair and set before the Altar, whither the Cardinals came according to Custom to adore him. After the Ceremony the Pope's Election was notified to the People, by a Discharge of the Artillery from the Castle of St. Angelo, and the Ringing of all the Bells. Then the Pope was carried to the Altar of Sixtus's Chappel, where he received his second Adoration. About four o' Clock the Vergers carried him under a Canopy to St. Peter's Church, and placed him in the Middle before the High Altar, when Te Deum was immediately sung, and the Cardinals came to adore him for the third Time, and kiss'd both his Hand and Cheek, after which the Pope was conducted to his Apartment. Cardinal Coscia now enjoys full Liberty, and there seems to be an End of the Process that was commenced against him. He is actually preparing to cut a splendid Figure, his Equipages and Liveries being in Hand, and a Palace being not only hired but fitted up for him; and there are some People who even venture to prophesy, that his Eminence will soon be restor'd to the Archbishoprick of Benevento, which he held under Benedict XIII. and which became vacant a while ago by the Death of Cardinal Cenci.

Cadiz, Aug. 12. O S. They work with the utmost diligence in equipping all the Men of War which are in this Port, and the same Orders are given to all the Ports in the Kingdom. We learn that the Squadron which sailed from Ferrol near a Month since, is gone to the West-Indies upon an important Enterprize. The Court having given Orders to equip a new Squadron of 10 more Men of War in this Port, so much Diligence is used in getting them ready, that 'tis hoped they will be in a Condition to put to Sea some time next Month. The last Vessel from the Havanna, which put into the Port of Lagos in Portugal, is arrived in the Bay: The Value of her Cargo is pretty considerable. The Interruption to the Return of the Galleons, and the Stop put to the Trade with Great-Britain, causes a great Scarcity in this City. The Merchants however, hope that the Court, in Conjunction with that of France. will take such Measures as will at length secure the Return of the Galleons; that being an Affair in which all Europe is interested.

Petersburg, Aug. 15. O. S. They write from Cronstadt, that the Fleet of the Empress, consisting of 22 Men of War, continues in that Port; some Frigates only cruize in the Baltick. Count Munich is perfectly recovered from his Indisposition.

Stockholm, Aug. 20. It is confirm'd that the Accommodation between this Court and Russia, is in great Forwardness, and that it will be intirely concluded before the Count de Severin's Departure for Paris: It is likewise said, that this Accommodation is to be guarantied by France.

Dantzick, Aug. 23. We have a plentiful Harvest in these Parts, and the finest Weather imaginable to get it in, insomuch, that notwithstanding the considerable Export of Grain, the Price of Corn begins to fall.

Hamburg, Aug. 30. Letters from Stockholm intimate, that the Court continues under some Uneasiness on account of the Uncertainty how her Differences with Russia will be determined.

Madrid, Aug. 19. O. S. The Courier lately arriv'd from Paris, whose Dispatches gave so much Satisfaction to the King & Queen, brought them Advice that the French Court had sent Orders to the Suadrons equipped at Brest and Toulon to put to Sea immediately, in order to go upon the Business concerted between the two Courts. Their Majesties have declared in publick, the Contents of those Dispatches. The Commissaries charged to examine the Prisoners brought hither from the Groyne and Ferrol, have delivered to the Court the verbal Process of their Examination, and most of them are to receive Sentence in a few Days.

Naples, Aug. 19. Since the King has been informed that the Court of Great-Britain refuses to conclude a Treaty of Neutrality with him, his Majesty has issued fresh Orders for putting our Marine in as good a Condition as possible.

Paris, Sept 1. O. S. The Departure of the Brest and Toulon Squadrons is at present the principal Subject of Conversation. 'Tis said, they are designed only to secure the Return of the Galleons, without taking any other Part in the present War between Great-Britain and Spain. 'Tis also added, that the Brest Squadron was seen the 23d ult. off Bell-Isle. Those who are best acquainted with the pacifick Disposition of the Cardinal, say, That this Step had never been taken but thro' the last Necessity, and on certain Advices received, that the Armaments carrying on in England threaten'd the Spanish Possessions; Great-Britain took so little Pains to conceal her Intentions, in which all Europe is so much interested. 'Tis said, that the Cardinal had long ago given Lord Waldgrave to understand the Resolution the Court of France would take, in case the English carried Matters too far.

Utrecht, Sept. 9. O. S. We hear by private Lteters from London, that upon the News of the Departure of the Brest and Toulon Squadrons, the Regency dispatch'd a Courier to Hanover the 1st Instant, with fresh Representations to the King concerning the Necessity of hastening his Return.

Plymouth, Sept. 12. This Morning was sent in here a Spanish Privateer of Eight Guns and Forty Men, taken the 2d Instant by the Newcastle Man of War. She was just come out of the Harbour of St. Sebastian's, where they say they are building a new Privateer of 24 Guns Nine-pounders, besides Swivels, and to carry 260 Men; and that the King of Spain has bought the Lisbon Packet for an Advice-boat to go to the West-Indies.

His Majesty's Ship the Garland has taken, and carried into Genoa, a Spanish Privateer of ten Guns, who had an English Ship in Tow at the time of her Capture.

LONDON, September 20.

An Extract of a Letter from the Hague.

The News of the Departure of the Breſt and Toulon Squadrons, at a Time when the States General had been lulled into a Perſwaſion that they would not put to Sea this Year, and that France was equipping theſe Squadrons rather with a View to give Uneaſineſs and Embarraſſment to the Court of Great-Britain, than to make any real Uſe of them, has cauſed a very great Surprize to the Miniſters of this Government. When the Marquiſs de Fenelon, on the Part of his Court, communicated to them the Reaſons that had engaged the King of France to ſend his Squadrons into the Weſt-Indies; the Members of the Regency declared to that Ambaſſador, that it appeared to them by the ſending of theſe Squadrons, in caſe they were deſigned to act in any ſort againſt the Engliſh, that the repeated Aſſurances given by his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty of adhering ſtrictly to the Neutrality until Spain had received ſome ſevere Stroke, were thereby rendered ineffectual; and that it was to be preſumed, that the Aſſiſtance which France ſhould lend that Nation, far from facilitating an Accommodation between the contending Powers, which the Court of France has often declared in the moſt poſitive Manner to be its ſincere Intent, would be a great Obſtacle thereto, from the Provocation that it muſt neceſſarily give the Engliſh. The Marquis de Fenelon in Anſwer to theſe Objections, delivered to the Lords of the Government a Declaration to be communicated to the States General, containing the Reaſons which the Court of France makes uſe of to juſtify the Departure of theſe Squadrons; which Declarations contain in Subſtance, 'That the King of France ſtill eager to employ his good Offices to maintain and re-eſtabliſh Peace in Europe, would have been ſatisfied, conformable to his former declaration, to have acted by Mediation only between Spain and Great-Britain, and would not have given any Aſſiſtance to the former, if the Engliſh would have contented themſelves to have acted by Sea only, without propoſing to themſelves the Conqueſt of the Poſſeſſions of Spain in America, and without diſcovering by their formidable Naval Armaments, that they deſign even to ſhake the Spaniſh Monarchy; but as his Chriſtian Majeſty is Guaranty for the Preſervation of the Dominions which the King of Spain now poſſeſſes, he believed himſelf under a Neceſſity of cauſing his Squadrons of Obſervation to depart for the Weſt-Indies; not with any Deſign to attack the Engliſh, but only to prevent their making Conqueſts, which would be of infinite Prejudice to ſeveral European Powers; to protect Navigation there, and to hinder them from becoming Maſters of all the Commerce in the Weſt-Indies.

The Earl of Pembroke's Horſe have Orders to march into Kent and Eſſex; alſo a Party of the Horſe Grenadiers to Dartford, to lie on the Road in order to Eſcort his Majeſty.

It is not doubted but the Channel and the Bay of Biſcay will ſoon be cleared of all the Spaniſh Privateers, by our cruizing Ships; for as Security gave them Courage, ſo the Apprehenſion of falling in the Way of the Britiſh Ships of War will keep them in Port.

We hear that Sir Chaloner Ogle's Squadron for the Weſt-Indies, are to conſiſt of 19 Third Rates, ten of Eighty Guns 600 Men each, and nine of 70, 470 Men each; 10 Fourth Rates, 60 Guns, 600 Men each; Four of 50 Guns, 300 Men each; one of 30 Guns, a Sixth Rate, 130 Men; with ſix Fireſhips 45 Men each, and two Hoſpital Ships of 92 Men each. Total of Men 16,384.

The Affair of the French repairing Dunkirk engroſſes the whole Diſcourſe of the Town.

Thurſday at Change 'twas current that Capt. Maſters in his Majeſty's Ship the Fox of 20 Guns, has taken two Spaniſh Privateers off St. Sebaſtians, of 10 Guns each, and ſunk a third; and that the Captain's Father had received a Letter from his Son with Advice thereof.

Bruſſels, Sept. 29. They write from Paris, that the Cardinal de Fleury had employed all poſſible Means in order to diſſwade the Engliſh from their intended Deſign, of their formidable equipage againſt the Countries of the King of Spain in America. That his Eminency had declared, and ſeveral times recited to the Lord Waldegrave, that Great-Britain could not execute her Deſign upon the Spaniſh Weſt-Indies, without an infinite Prejudice to France and its Subjects. That his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty could not avoid to oppoſe it, in caſe the Executing thereof was not delayed; and that he found himſelf obliged as being Guarantee of the Treaty of Utrecht, to watch upon the Conſervation of the Spaniſh Poſſeſſions, and the Ballance of thoſe Quarters, and likewiſe to protect the permitted Commerce of all Nations in the Spaniſh Dominions in America. But ſince theſe Remonſtrances had not had the expected Effect, and that England to the contrary had cauſed their Equipage to be overhaſtned and doubled, declaring openly that they were deſigned againſt the Spaniſh Weſt-Indies; his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty had been at laſt obliged to order his Fleets to depart for thoſe Quarters, in purſuance of the Declaration made by his Eminency to the Britiſh Miniſter. As concerning the Orders of the Commanders of thoſe Fleets, they are not to endamage either of the two warring Powers, and only to hinder that they make no Conqueſt upon one another, and not to alter the State of Affairs in which they at preſent are. In this preſent Juncture it was judged that the French Court could not take a wiſer Reſolution nor more ſuitable to reaſon, ſince it is neither more diſadvantageous to the one than the other; and that the King with all his Might fulfilling the Obligation wherein he finds himſelf as Gurantee of the Treaty of Utrecht, may prevent that there may not be made any Newneſs in the Syſtem of the New World, and to keep things there upon ſuch a Footing as they ought to be for the general Welfare of all Nations that trade in America. 'Tis added, that it was not well poſſible to think upon any other means which would equally ſatisfy all theſe important objects, and which would alſo be capable to eſtabliſh Peace above all; if the other Powers intereſted as France in this publick affair, do not tarry in ſupporting the peaceable Intention of his Majeſty.

BARBADOS, Octob. 20.

There are Fifteen Sail of French Men of War of 60 Guns each arrived at Martinica, whoſe Deſign none can tell, tho' ſome ſuſpect 'tis upon this Iſland. Laſt Night we were ſurprized by a Veſſel in the Road firing after the limited Hours, and Needham's Fort firing at her for ſo doing; which alarm'd the Town, and Auſtin's Fort taking it from thence, rais'd all the Country People.

PHILADELPHIA.
